The image shows a 15x15 grid used for word scanning. On the left side, there is a photograph of a room with two orange armchairs, a small table, and a large window with a view of a city. The grid is filled with black arrows pointing in various directions (up, down, left, right, and diagonally) to indicate where to start scanning for words. The arrows are placed at the beginning of each word in the original image, and their direction indicates the scan direction.
